Pope Gregory XIII

Pope Gregory XIII wanted to make the church better. He was very smart and knew how to work with people. He considered education very important and started schools where men could study to become priests.

Pope Gregory XIII created a new calendar. The old calendar was too long and did not match the seasons of the year and the cycles of the moon. The calendar we use today is the same calendar that Pope Gregory XIII created. It is called the Gregorian calendar in his honor.

On the calendar below, mark the phases of the moon. Each evening, go outside and look at the moon. Draw what the moon looks like each night.

Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
